

Sacraments of Service

Matrimony and Holy Orders are called sacraments at the service of communion.

People celebrating these sacraments receive a special grace.

This helps them serve the Christian family and Christian community.

Select from the terms below to complete the statements for these sacraments.

administer disciples
parish baptized
faithful preach
consecrates freely
welcome covenant
lifelong

Holy Orders

One must be _____ to receive this sacrament.

A priest has the responsibility to oversee a _____ community.

The priest _____ bread and wine.

The ordained person is called to _____ the Gospel.

Common to both Sacraments

The choice for this vocation must be _____ made.

Participants enter into a _____ commitment.

Those involved live as Christ's _____.

Matrimony

The man and woman promised to be _____.

This is a _____ between two people.

The married couple has the responsibility to _____ and raise children.

Participants _____ the sacrament to one another.

Sacraments of Service

Matrimony and Holy Orders are called sacraments at the service of communion.
People celebrating these sacraments receive a special grace.
This helps them serve the Christian family and Christian community.

Select from the terms below to complete the statements for these sacraments.

administer disciples
parish baptized
faithful preach
consecrates freely
welcome covenant
lifelong

Holy Orders

One must be baptized to receive this sacrament.

A priest has the responsibility to oversee a parish community.

The priest consecrates bread and wine.

The ordained person is called to preach the Gospel.

Common to both Sacraments

The choice for this vocation must be freely made.

Participants enter into a lifelong commitment.

Those involved live as Christ's disciples.

Matrimony

The man and woman promised to be faithful.

This is a covenant between two people.

The married couple has the responsibility to welcome and raise children.

Participants administer the sacrament to one another.

Parents, Catechists, Teachers: The statements above include some of the responsibilities of marriage and the priesthood. God calls each member of the Church to Christian service, according to his or her vocation.